He digs deeper, enjoys the scenery and comes out on the other side illuminated. - Criss Jami, Venus weapons It is indisputable that a creature whose opportunities to enjoy are small has the greatest opportunity to fully satisfy them; and a very endowed being will always feel that any happiness which he may seek as the world forms is imperfect. But he can learn to assume his imperfections if they are covered at all; and they shall not make him envy to a being which is indeed unconscious because of imperfections, but only because he does not feel at all the good which those imperfections are entitled to receive. It is better to be someone who is not satisfied than a pig; better to be socrates unhappy than stupid satisfied. And if a fool, or a pig, has a different opinion, it's just because they know only the side of their question. - John Stuart Mill, Utilitarian Life is funnier if you play games. - Roald Dahl, My Uncle Oswald Life is climbing. Why not try to understand the bird's song? Why love the night, the flowers, everything around one, without trying to understand them? But in the case of painting, people need to understand. If only they would understand, above all, the necessity of the artist's works, that he himself is just a little bit of a detail in the world, and that no more importance should be on him than many other things that please us in the world, although we can't explain them. People who try to explain the pictures usually bark at that tree. - Pablo Picasso Whiskey is a liquid sun. - George Bernard Shaw But this is the whole purpose of civilization: to make everything a source of pleasure. - Leo Tolstoy, Anna Karenina We must not only get wisdom: we must enjoy it. - Marcus Tullius Cicero, Selected Works Honey, no one ever knows. Wear your attractive clothes, wear your beautiful perfume, use your fine silver and dishes, and drink from your expensive crystal glasses... just because. Live every day to the end and enjoy every minute of it. - Rodolfo Costa, Tips My Parents Gave Me; and other lessons I learned from my mistakes These examples show what you need to learn to control attention. In principle, any skill or discipline that can be mastered independently will be useful: meditation and prayer, if someone is so inclined; exercise, aerobics, martial arts for those who want to focus on physical skills. Any specialization or competence that seems to me to be pleasant and where you can improve my knowledge over time. However, the approach to these disciplines is important. If one prays to be holy, or exercises develop strong pectoral muscles, or learn to be knowledgeable, then many benefits are lost. It is important to enjoy the activity for your own sake and know that the most important thing is not the result, but the control, gaining more attention. - Mihaly Look for the flow: In the psychology of participation in everyday life I have to enjoy those I company – my friends as well as silence as a conversation. - Anne Brontë, Wildfell Hall tenant Some Americans say it was great, I know it was good. When they said it was fine. I know it was okay. When they say it's okay, I know it was bad. - Laura Klos Sokol Harmless Glee and Floating Glee are not uncommon geniuses combined, and we are never more deceived than when we are mistaken for gravity because of greatness, solemnity to science, and pompousness for erudition. - Charles Caleb Colton [Letter to my wife Natalia Sedova]Without the happiness of being a fighter for the cause of socialism, fate gave me happiness to be a husband. During the nearly forty years of our lives together, it remained an inexhaustible source of love, magnate, and tenderness. She has suffered great suffering, especially in the last period of our lives. But I get a little comforted by the fact that she also knew the days of happiness. Forty-three years of my conscious life I have been a revolutionary; forty-two of them I fought under marxist advertising. If I had to start all over again, I would, of course, try to avoid this or that mistake, but the main course of my life would remain unchanged. I will die a proletarian revolutionary, a Marxist, a dialectical materialist, and thus an incompatible atheist. My belief in the communist future of mankind is no less passionate, in fact today it is stronger than in the days of my youth. Natasha just came into the window out of the yard and opened it more widely so that the air could get to my room more freely. I see a bright green strip of grass under the wall and a clear blue sky above the wall and sunlight everywhere. Life is beautiful. Let future generations clear it from all evil, oppression and violence and enjoy it to the end. Leon - Trotsky ... the grace of work does not always exalt his faith. - Jane Austen, Sense and Sensibility I could hear the boy cheerful in the back seat, while Justin had a huge smile on his face. his dimples stand out. I closed my eyes. Maybe I lacked the required testosterone level to enjoy it. - Katie Kacvinsky, Awaken Early Death not only robs one of the many cases where you would have experienced pleasure, it also saves one of the countless cases where you would have experienced pain. - Mokokoma Mokhoanoa « previous 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 next »
